MAYOR PEERS 20 YEARS AHEAD AND FINDS CITY WORTH WAITING FOR

Reads Signs of The Times For Rotary Club as Indicating 50,000 Population in 1940, Living in City Beautiful, Convenient and With Efficient Utilities.

Nearly a hundred Kiwanians and Rotarians enjoyed a chicken dinner at Cuneo's at Lake Katrine, Wednesday evening, the Kiwanis Club being guests (Dutch treat) of the Rotary Club. Harry P. Dodge, song leader of the joint meeting, extracted a vast amount of vocal music from the assemblage and Fred Connelly, a former Kingstonian, who was present as the guest of his brother, Arthur C. Connelly, sang two solos in his wonderfully pleasing voice. After introductions all around, the address of the evening was delivered by Mayor Canfield who had been asked to take as his topic, "Kingston in 1940." The mayor spoke as follows:

In an attempt to picture Kingston in 1940, I do not come with a special message of an inspired prophet. I claim no power to foretell the future of our city by supernatural influence. I prophesy nothing. My words will, however, be characterized by anticipative and intuitive prediction. They will be partly based upon what shall be and what should be. What I may predict or prognosticate in relation to Kingston twenty years hence, will have for its basis, the signs, conditions, indications and trend of the times in relation to cities generally and our city in particular.

Citizens of 1940.

What of the people in 1940. All of the peculiarities of the nature of man and all of the special characteristics of woman will be the same as now, except some will be strengthened and deepened and some weakened and lessened. There will be little to distinguish the men and women of Kingston in 1940 from those of to-day. They will have a more liberal education and a greater mental cultivation on the average. There will be more humanized characters. There will be a greater tendency of the citizenry to seek and develop the general welfare and benefit of the city. There will be less selfism and more community helpism. There will be a greater civic pride and an increased enthusiasm for civic service. There will be as much self-evolution and much more city-evolution. I can better represent, portray and contrast the men, women and children of the city looking forward twenty years by a number of stories I will tell.

In passing I might add that the speaker in 1940 will tell similar stories to illustrate or emphasize their thoughts or to hide and conceal their lack of thought. A few of the stories will be a narration or recital of something which has occurred. Most of them will have no relation to anything which has or could actually happen but will have a fictitious basis and make-up, as at the present time.

Population.

I will refer to the population first because that usually excites the most interest and speculation. The work now being done by the city and the Chamber of Commerce and the people is bound to bring results. We will grow faster after 1925 than we ever have. I would estimate our population in 1930 at 35,000 and in 1940 at 50,000. When we once make a real start to augment our population we will gain an average of five per cent each year for twenty years, with the probability of a lesser average increase thereafter. It is bound to come as a result of plans being carried out and policies being formulated, of things being accomplished and of things that will be done, each of which will be a stimulus to growth and some of which I will mention.

Kingston as a River Port.

Kingston will be a river port prior to 1940. Our river front must be and will be developed. Every citizen should be familiar with our expectations in reference to a large canal terminal pier to be built by the state upon the Hudson river just north of the light house. The state has the site, but it must be developed and all necessary connections made and buildings erected and appliances installed.

Practically every city in the world of any great consequence is not only upon a great waterway, but has developed its waterway advantages. It is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, factor in the future development and growth of our city. We may drift ahead but we cannot progress consistently forward without taking full advantage of our waterway connections. This does not mean docks. It requires terminals fitted with the latest and best facilities and mechanisms for the loading and unloading cargoes. It means piers with necessary appliances and buildings to discharge cargoes and to reload or transfer or store same expeditiously and at small expense. It includes railroad connection and vehicular access.

One city spent fifty million dollars upon its waterway terminals and its annual commerce increased from twenty-five to one hundred million dollars. Another city spent several hundred million dollars and became the third greatest port in the world. Hundred of cities could be cited which have received returns one hundred fold for every dollar so expended. In European countries, all cities upon waterways, including the smaller ones of our size, develop and maintain their waterway possibilities to the maximum extent.

In 1940, I predict that there will be a series of piers, wharves and docks from the light house to Kingston Point dock. With the Panama, the intra-coastal, and the Barge canals, the Hudson river becomes like a major transportation artery linked up with the heart of the nation's trade and commerce. Freight could come and go from here to the principal cities and parts of the country by barges and boats. Freight would come in part for consumption in city, in part as raw materials for manufacturing purposes, in part for transshipment, and in part for storage for later shipment. I submitted to the state board a list of twenty-five articles that could be shipped to and from Kingston by boat, with greater dispatch and with less labor and cost than in other ways, if proper water terminals existed. It is our duty to develop these water facilities and thus stimulate every line of industry here. The railroads with a broad policy do not hinder waterway development or consider and treat it as a competitor but as a co-operative feeder.

Zoning.

In 1940, the present lack of zoning or districting regulations will not exist. Such a condition, with consequent private license, is harmful to the interests of the public. Sections, districts and blocks will be classified according to their uses.

Our city requires a greater flexibility in the application of classifications than most cities because of its many different sections and its several businesses, industrial and residential sections. It cannot be laid out as rigidly as some cities. There must be a hundred small zones arranged to the best possible advantage. In some cases the future character of the section must be determined which requires adaptability.

Besides graded zones, the ratio of area of buildings to that of the lot, will have been accepted by every city before 1940. There will also be regulated the height and design of buildings, and the laws of symmetry, harmony, balance and architectural order will be required to be followed. Thus, property will be protected and its value preserved.

Railroad Passenger Terminal.

In 1940, we will have a suitable and adequate union station or railroad passenger terminal. There will be an effective arrangement giving recognition to the sections easterly and westerly of the West Shore railroad tracks. This may take the form of one main station building westerly of the tracks extending over the end of Railroad avenue and occupying also the property beyond with a frontage of over one hundred feet on the West Shore and of a similar distance on the Ulster & Delaware railroad. Then a smaller station would be required on the easterly side with a vehicular entrance in a plaza effect and with under passageways for pedestrians connecting the station and leading to the tracks. Railroad avenue and the easterlyend of Thomas street would be widened. There could be a covered way to the Broadway subway. Such a station plan will add much to the importance, attractiveness, dignity and prestige of Kingston twenty years from now.

Grade Crossing Elimination.

Before a new station can be obtained, the West Shore grade crossing at Broadway be eliminated. The station arrangements must be based upon the elimination plan. In 1940, the elimination will have long been justified. One of our American cities feels it is justified to expend five million dollars to extend an avenue three blocks because it is calculated there are twenty-five thousand people daily losing ten minutes per day. In our city a similar number of people and five thousand vehicles pass over such crossing each day, with a loss of one hundred thousand hours a year. In 1940, there will be treble the number of persons or vehicles passing through, and any question mark about the necessity of the elimination will have been erased from every memory.

Streets.

The settlement of Kingston referred to by George Washington when he visited as in 1782 became a city ninety years after he uttered those words. The city today requires better and more complete vehicular traffic and transportation facilities. The favorable or unfavorable impression which visitors to our city receive is dependent upon the appearance of our streets to a great extent. Good streets pay in many ways. They permit of vehicular transportation at greater speed, less cost and more comfort. They can be kept in a cleanly and sanitary condition and contribute to better community health. In 1940, all water and gas pipes, and fire, police, telephone and telegraph cables and wires will be placed in tunnels, with the sewer beneath, and the new streets will not then be constantly dug up, and hard and smooth pavements will be laid on all streets within the inner part of the city, and the citizens will not accept any other character of street.

Our sewer system is not adequate. We will have as we must have and will be compelled to have by that time a comprehensive and efficient sewage.

DISARMAMENT TALK DELAYED

Until It Is Seen if Anglo-Jap Treaty Is Menace to United States—Japs Talk Disarmament But Build Warships Feverishly.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 30.—The Anglo-Japanese alliance, in which the United States is vitally interested, will be renewed, but renewed in such a way that all the teeth will be taken out of of it, according to reliable information which has reached Washington from the imperial conference now going on in London.

In well informed diplomatic quarters today the opinion was expressed that when the treaty is revamped and signed by Great Britain and Japan it will be little more than a treaty of amity and commerce between the two great powers, and one that will hold forth no military or naval menace against the United States.

The United States government, it was said today, has not received any official assurances that this is to be the upshot of the imperial conference, but the belief is so strong that the United States has little to fear in the renewal of the alliance that the administration has no hesitancy about going ahead with disarmament plans.

The status of the disarmament situation today is that both senate and house have adopted by overwhelming votes the Borah amendment to the naval bill authorizing and requesting the president to invite Britain and Japan to get around a table and talk of limiting armament for five years. It is now up to President Harding. He can take the steps whenever in his own judgment he deems the time to be propitious.

It is understood, however, that the president will take no action until it is seen clearly and definitely what results come out of the London conference. In any event, the present is not deemed by administration leaders to be the proper time to make formal advances.

Not only does the administration desire to await the outcome of the London meeting, but also it desires to await the result of the "feelers" which President Harding has thrown out among the world powers on the question of disarmament. These "feelers" have been put out through diplomatic agencies abroad, and will be put up in even more concrete form by Ambassador George Harvey at the forthcoming meeting of the Allied supreme council, it is expected here.

The only fly in the disarmament ointment, as seen here, is the uncertainty regarding Japan's attitude. Japan's statesmen have publicly made cautious statements indicating their desire to limit armament, but meanwhile have been going ahead arming at a rate that is almost feverish.

HEARING IN DANA BANKRUPTCY

T. & A. Sales And Manufacturing Company Claims His $675 Indebtedness To Them Is Result of Embezzlement And Not Dischargeable.

A hearing was had before Amos Van Etten, referee at his office at No. 260 Fair street on Wednesday afternoon in the bankruptcy matter of Russell R. Dana, Jr. Virgil B Van Waxonen represented the bankrupt and Newton H. Fessenden appeared for the T. & A. Sales and Manufacturing Co., Inc., the only creditor.

It appeared from the testimony taken that the bankrupt was in the employ of the T. & A. Sales and Manufacturing Company from June 9th, 1919 until June 30, 1920. The indebtedness to the T. & A. Sales and Manufacturing Company was evidenced by two notes, aggregating $675.00 which the company claims represented a shortage of the company's funds which had been collected by the bankrupt. It is further contended by the T. & A Sales and Manufacturing Company that the indebtedness is one created by the embezzlement, misappropriation or defalcation of the bankrupt while acting in a fiduciary capacity and that the same is not a dischargeable debt under Section 17 of the Bankruptcy act.

Objections were made to questions asked Mr. Dana, designed to show the character of the indebtedness and such objections were sustained by the referee. The matter was later adjourned until September 23rd, on or before which time it is expected that the decision of the referee excluding such evidence will have been reviewed. There are no assets in the bankrupt's estate.

TROLLEY CAR IN TROUBLE

When Lightning Followed Circuit Into Controller Box.

A controller on Car No. 17 of the Kingston Consolidated railroad was burned out near the corner of Fair and John streets, about 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Just as the fire alarm was ringing in 44 for a fire on Hasbrouck avenue a sheet of flame rose from the controller at which Jefferson Short the motorman stood with one hand on the lever, the flames going up his arm and sleeve, but luckily he was not burned. He quickly turned off the power and the fire soon went out. Motorman Short went to the rear and put on the power from the controller there while Conductor Peter Crough went to the front and acted as lookout while the car was run to the car barn on Broadway. It was said lightning followed the trolley wire and then down the trolley pole on the car to the controller and caused the fire.

Newburgh Shipyards Idle.

Thomas C. Desmond, former president and one of the chief stockholders of the Newburgh Shipyards, Inc., according to the Newburgh News, states that there will be no change in the ownership of the yards and that the plant may resume work in the fall, but at a lower wage. Mr. Desmond says that there are two reasons for the yards being idle. One is the separation of the yards from government control, and the other to allow labor conditions to stabilize and get back to peace-time conditions. He also stated that the yards when work is resumed expect to employ about 2,000 men.

DAMAGE DONE IN NEEDED RAIN

Severe Electrical Storm Broke Over City Shortly After 4 O'Clock On Wednesday—Hasbrouck Avenue Barn Struck By Lightning—Phone Service Crippled.

The drought that has held Kingston and Ulster county in its grip for several weeks was really broken shortly after 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when a severe electrical storm broke over the city, and rain fell throughout the night and today. In Kingston a bolt of lightning struck the roof of the two story frame barn owned by Abram Cohen in the rear of No. 161 Hasbrouck avenue.

An alarm of fire was turned in from Box 44, shortly after 4 o'clock to which the fire department responded. The fire was confined to the roof of the barn. This was the only fire reported during the storm in this vicinity.

The New York Telephone Company service was badly crippled by the electrical storm. In fact this district, comprising Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston, sustained the worst damage in years. Between 1,500 and 2,000 telephones in the district were placed out of commission.

In Kingston three of the large cables that carry a number of telephone wires were struck, and as a result forty lines and 225 telephones were crippled.

The telephone company is using every effort to clean up and restore service as promptly as possible.

While the storm was severe, it was badly needed. It has been several weeks since the city and county was visited by more than brief showers of rain, and considerable damage has been caused to hay and other crops. The strawberry crop was over half short and other berries have been damaged by the drought.

2,500 LEAVE STATE CAPITOL TO JOIN ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED

Exodus Caused By Miller Economy Program Hits Small Salaried Job Holders Hardest, Although Three Commissions Are Wiped Out and 456 Go From Industrial Commission.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., June 30.—A weary, disgruntled army of officially decapitated state employes wended their way out of the capitol and branch state departments today to join the great army of unemployed.

By midnight, the state's payroll will be reduced approximately 2,500 persons, victims of Governor Miller's economy knife that pruned attaches of every state department. People from every section of the state are affected, the small salaried man and woman being hardest hit.

Midnight also officially marks the end of the military training commission, the state narcotic drug control commission and the state elections commission. It means reduction in the Americanization bureau of the education department and the accomplishment of the governor's reorganization of state departments. The state comptroller and the secretary of state are stripped of much of their bureau work and all tax collecting agencies in their departments and in other departments of the state are centralized under one commission which really gets undor way tomorrow.

Special department counsel go and the legal work of departments hereafter will repose entirely in the attorney-general's office. Engineering forces are transferred from individual departments to the state engineer's office.

The industrial commission, reduced in force by 456 employes, is about the hardest hit of all the departments. One hundred employes are dropped from the reorganized tax commission, eighty from the public service commission; 50 from the conservation commission and 50 from the state health department.

STILLMAN STILL BAFFLES LAWYERS

Wife's Attorneys Continue Efforts to Worm Answers Out of Banker, With Vain Results—Walks in Front Door and Lawyer Denies Cellar and Coal Hole Story of Wednesday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 30.—Arriving for the resumption of his ordeal on the witness stand in his suit for divorce, James A. Stillman, amid the clicking of a battery of cameras and under the gaze of an army of reporters, for the first time accepted the inevitable today and, without any attempt at disguise or hiding, walked up to the court room by the front door. His eyes were glued to the ground. Upstairs in the chambers of Referee Gleason, he was again face to face with his wife, Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman, the second time in more than a year. Again never gave the slightest sign of recognition.

A few minutes afterward the hearing was under way and Mrs. Stillman's attorneys were again exploiting every conceivable legal recourse to force the multi-millionaire to answer the direct questions which yesterday he had steadfastly refused to answer, on the ground that he did not wish to "incriminate and degrade" himself.

Stillman again refused to answer all questions bearing on direct issues in the case. Again he repeated over and over that he refused because he did not wish to incriminate himself.

As the banker and his legal aides arrived, Cornelius J. Sullivan, one of his counsel, took occasion to upbraid the newspapermen:

"Why don't you reporters tell the truth?" he fairly shouted. "All the newspapers said this morning that Mr. Stillman went up to the court room yesterday through the back door and cellar. He did nothing of the kind. He walked right through the front door at 9:30. But you fellows missed him."

There followed a storm of contradiction from two score trained reporters who announced their readiness to swear that the ex-banker did not enter the building in the front door, some even offering affidavits that he went through the back door and cellar.

The back door was locked today.

Mrs. Stillman bore her usual cheers and composed manner today. She had on a flower-dotted black dress, black straw hat and black pumps, this somewhat somber setting being counteracted by cream colored stockings and a string of pearls.

NAVY HAPPY OVER IOWA TEST

But Two Direct Hits Out Of 80 Bombs Dropped and Battleship Proponents Laugh At Aircraft.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

On Board U. S. S. Henderson, at sea, by destroyer to Hampton Roads, (Va)., naval base, June 30.—Officers of the Atlantic fleet, who followed the air attack upon the discarded United States battleship Iowa were confident today that the test has proved that the modern battleship is comparatively safe from aerial bombardments. Consequently there is great glee on the Atlantic fleet.

About 80 bombs were aimed at the Iowa by four bomber machines that carried out the attack, some of them in salvos of 17, and the official report showed two direct hits upon the Iowa's forecastle. There was no defence from the Iowa. The attack lasted two hours and 27 minutes.

The fleet is splitting up today and leaving the Hampton Roads rendezvous for the Fourth of July.

There are many officers on board who have new faith in the declaration of former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels that he would be willing to stand upon the bridge of a battleship and let General Mitchell bomb him from an airplane.

It was first reported that the bombers had not scored a single direct hit upon the Iowa but that many of them fell very close. This led to a controversy over the effect upon a ship's armor from bombs exploding in the water nearby.

The Iowa was traveling at about 18 miles an hour during the attack and was steered in a zig zag course by radio. There was no one on board.

The following facts were cited by proponents of the battleships as opposed to aircraft:

1—The Iowa was sighted first by blimps which were flying low making excellent targets for high angle guns.

2—The first blimp was sighted at 9:57 o'clock and the first attack was not launched until an hour and 30 minutes later giving the ship under battle conditions and battle speed ample time for defense and changing her course.

3—The first radio report sent out by the scouting planes gave the position of the Iowa 20 miles from the spot where she was subsequently located.

Naval officers contend that the battleship is still the supreme sea fighter.

The proponents of the airplane were not here to present their case.

The experiment proved the value of radio control of large vessels for the Iowa responded without fail to the control flashed from the Ohio which was miles astern. It is believed that this development may be of great value in operations where ships are sunk at harbor entrances for purpose of blockade. Such operations were carried out by the British in the world war at Zeebrugge and Ostend on the Belgian coast.

MAYOR PEERS INTO FUTURE

drainage system and a purification plant. There will be no objectionable land dumping, as municipal refuse will be disposed of by means of incinerating plants. The householders' cans will be carted by trucks and trailers to the plant and the cans then returned. The people will demand such service and their health and comfort will be better.

Shade trees not only afford shade and make the city attractive. They temper winds, reduce dust, improve the street air, and conduce to healthfulness. There will be a city tree nursery and all trees in public places which are now partly under the control of the city will be entirely under its jurisdiction and a tree plan and system will be followed. All sense of beauty and proportion will not be lost in municipalities no more than in private homes.

Street Lighting.

The street lighting of 1940 will vary from the present system. The city will have less lights but much greater power and at a greater height above the street. The lights and standards will be decorative and serve as an embellishment to the city. The power and the height will be proportional to secure a more effective and uniform as well as economical distribution of light. Clusters of lights are costly and furnish the worst example of unequal distribution of light. We will not have an incandescent light twenty years from now as they are obsolete, inadequate and afford no proportionate degree of illumination and are not economical or effective.

Municipal Market.

The year in question will find a public market with every necessary equipment. Such a market will be of help and assistance to the householder and also to the retailer. It will include vegetables, fruits and dairy products. The retailers and the people generally will be enabled to buy at the most favorable times and prices and to buy in bulk, and it will help to bring economy to the householder, and a fairer return and a more uniform prosperity to the producers from which the merchants will receive some benefit.

Parks.

A city cannot plan too far ahead for its parks. The vision and planning of certain people in New York city over sixty years ago gives the people Central Park today. A system should be laid out in a comprehensive manner and with a long view into the future. One city has laid out and planned its park development one hundred years in advance.

We have our splendid Forsyth Park. It will develop to a much greater extent during the next two decades. There will be a small lake affording facilities to the children for wading in summer and skating in winter with a plain gushing fountain in the center. There will be a pavilion for concerts and for protection from the elements, flower beds, botanical gardens and a zoological park. Our beautiful hemlock grove which could not be replaced for a million dollars, and of which there are only several others in public parks in this country, will be one of the wonders of the city. We will also have a number of decorative fountains, statues, arches, columns and facades.

The city will own Kingston Point Park including the site now occupied to the north extending around and including the beach. The city will own another site which affords a most wonderful opportunity for a public park. In addition to these three parks the city will have a number of small decorative rest plats and spaces. The Senate House grounds will be utilized. There should be and probably will be then a small park on the plaza plan at and around the entrance to the Kingston-Esopus bridge. The environment of the approach is such as to offer the opportunity to produce a pleasing and attractive result. The people will be given more and more to parks and recreation facilities and the embellishment of the city not only for their own satisfaction but for the attraction of visitors and those from without. In the future, excepting transportation facilities which we have the recreational and housing facilities will be the two principal things to appeal to the factory owner who will not only seek a satisfactory place for his factory but for his employes.

A demand will arise before that time for a colosseum or stadium. We have a suitable site for one which would provide for a capacity of five thousand persons. It would be used for outdoor public assemblies, for an auditorium, for expositions and fairs, for public games, for marketing purposes, and for educational, and religious open air assemblage and pageants. Parades could start and end there. Such an assemblage center would prove a wonderful attraction and addition to Kingston.

Special Features.

The city will alway turn and contemplate its past with pride just as an old established business concern will do. It need not be featured or emphasized unreasonably, but it will be remembered. In fact it is worth while to crystallize the dominant and distinctive features of the past of the city, such as features of natural and historical origin. All cities in Europe do it to their advantage and enrichment and most of them have less than our city to offer. The glories of all ancient people were centered in their cities. The old embankment in Ponckhockie where the Kingston patriots made their heroic but futile stand can be uncovered. Other noted features can be utilized to advance the interests of the city and to advertise it. The city has a splendid opportunity to develop a garden city. Life in the city with cramped quarters and the desire for health and the love of nature draw people to such a place. With five hundred homes, using one hundred as a unit with a unity of lay out but variety of design, and each having a spacious yard devoted partly to vegetables and partly to flowers, with grass plats, trees, hedges, shrubbery and arbors, our housing problem would be settled, and it would be an attraction for the city. Someone will plan it before we are all twenty years older.

Planning For Kingston.

This might appear to be an idealistic picture, but most of it is a true picture. The people are demanding and ever demanding more and more service. Their demands become concentrated and crystallized and are transferred into action. There will be more and more the demand to contribute to the comfort, health, and well being of the citizens. The higher the developments of the city planning the greater results obtained by the city. The question naturally comes to one's mind as to the cost. It is true that all service costs something. It is costly to act. It is more costly not to act. The burden of taxation upon real estate has practically reached its limit. There will be no increase. The future will bring relief, if anything, from the burden of such taxation. Taxes in this county have been unequally distributed. The future will provide a fairer and better equalization and distribution. A good start has already been made.

There is nothing that will attract industries and people to the city as much as the improvement of hygienic conditions, the development of civic pride and artistic municipal taste, and an operative community spirit. It will bring us a greater population of a higher character. In fact, the whole destiny of the city depends upon it. A city must build and rebuild in accordance with the highest principles of city planning.

The Kingston of twenty years ahead will be a worthy object of civic pride and an inspiration to the people. The streets, the parks, the trees and all other similar features have a wonderful psychological effect upon its people. A progressive and beautiful city reaches the aesthetic sense and is a powerful stimulus to right conduct. Where these things are not manifested in a city, and where backwardness in development, characterizes it, where there is no conception of order, health, convenience or grandeur, where there is no comprehensive plan for ultimate improvement and development, where the fundamental objects of city planning are forgotten, where there is no awakening or understanding, where all public matters are swayed or influenced by self-interest, personal consideration or prejudice, with a warped or misguided or selfish judgment, where there is no foresighted outlook or bigness of vision, where public things are conceived without thought and executed without plans, there such a city, if it had an eye, and a lachrymal gland, it would cry and turn its people into ancient behemoths of the Bible.

No elaborate plan can be executed at once. It must be carried gradually into execution. There must be a generator of progress and enlightenment continually working. There should be a muncipial planning commission. There are things to be continually anticipated in the interest of wisdom and economy. Probably Washington and Buffalo are the only two cities in America that were actually planned from the beginning. No city in America is worth seeing as a city except Washington, except the inharmonious and incongruous skyscrapers in New York city. On the other hand there is hardly a city in Europe not worth seeing as a city of attraction and interest.

This arc of vision might seem to great and unscalable to some. It might appear to exist in the imagination only, lacking the elements that make fulfilment probable. I do not claim a super mind to penetrate the future, but I do say that most of these things will be realized by 1940. All of them and more, can be and will be if our fields of vision and courage are big enough in the future to burn through what appears to be insuperable barriers, and if we bring these things into mental view, and if the mountains of doubt are removed, and if all will become civic gladiators, and if all will see in the reflected rays of civic progress Kingston in 1940.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, June 30.—The Mexican war department has informed the United States government that the arrest of Pablo Gonzales has been ordered on the ground he has violated the neutrality laws, according to a report printed here today. Gonzales was said to have left Laredo, Texas, incognito for San Antonio.

Gonzales is alleged to be involved in a revolutionary plot. General Manuel Perez Trevino, chief of staff to President Obregon, denies that revolutionists are active along the Mexican-American border. General Trevino said that the government did not attach very much importance to the activities of Gonzales because he has no military support.

COLLINS IS IRRECONCILABLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 30.—Irish extremists are threatening to revolt and set up a new government if Eamonn De Valera continues peace negotiations in compliance with Premier Lloyd George's latest proposals, according to information reaching Whitehall this afternoon.

"Mike" Collins, so-called commander-in-chief of the Irish republican army, is reported to have announced that he will never surrender even if the rest of Ireland does so.

If the "Pale" (central section) of Ireland surrenders the counties of Cork and Kerry will continue to hold out, according to information which is attributed to Collins.

It is understood that Collins plans, in the event of an agreement, to go to Clonakilty and proclaim himself "president of Ireland" with Austen Stack and Richard Mulcahy as his chief aides.

Barry Egan, deputy lord mayor of Cork, is planning to go to Paris to arrange an Irish junta to back and finance any counter republican movement that Collins may undertake.

TO HOLD PARLEY WITHOUT CRAIG

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 30.—Despite the new obstacles in the way of the proposed Irish peace parley the opinion was held in many quarters today that the conference would eventually be held in some form.

"Does De Valera really want peace?" queried the Daily Mail in commenting upon the Sinn Fein official's second message to Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster

The Daily Mail called it a pity that Sir James Craig refused De Valera's invitation to go to Dublin on Monday for a Sinn Fein-Unionist conference.

"Sir James Craig's refusal will undoubtedly help to obscure De Valera's real attitude," added the Daily Mail

The Times said that De Valera's reply to Sir James Craig's refusal to confer with him was "the work of a theoretical politician rather than that of a statesman"

The message which De Valera sent to Sir James Craig at belfast follows.

"I regret that you cannot come for a conference here Monday Premier Lloyd-George's proposal, because of complications, is impossible of acceptance in its present form Irish political differences ought to be adjusted and can be adjusted, I believe, upon Irish soil But it is obvious that in negotiating peace with Great Britain the Irish delegation ought not to be divided but should act as a unit on some common principle"

It was stated that the Dublin conference would be held despite Sir James's absence. Other Unionist leaders will be present.

"SPECIES OF BIGOTRY"

That there is unquestionably a growing disposition of all hands to be more generous, particularly as regards employer and employe, is shown daily by reports in newspapers touching on industrial conditions throughout the country. There will be acute situations which hang fire longer than they should, but the trend, nevertheless, is toward adjustment that will be satisfactory, that is, satisfactory as any adjustment can be between individuals. There are indications that those representing all elements are trying to reach an amicable agreement and with intelligent effort some good is sure to come.

Another instance proving that the employer is doing what he can to help in the big adjustment, which will follow the suggestion of President Harding relative to getting back to normal, was offered at a recent meeting of managers of one of the largest hotel corporations in the country at which the president of the company, Frank A. Dudley, stated there were two subjects which he wished to take up briefly. One was discipline and the other was "our attitude toward labor." As to discipline, Mr. Dudley said there was no organization or corporation large or small that could advance without proper discipline being maintained, but by discipline he did not mean the application of arbitrary methods.

But it was what he said as to "our attitude toward labor" that held the strict attention of his audience, composed entirely of employers. Among other things he declared. "Our views may be widely divergent but whether we like or do not like labor unions, let us always carry a tolerant and friendly feeling to those occupying positions under us. This does not mean being soft or weak-kneed in dealing with our employes; but first be sure that you are right and that you are just. With right and justice on your side you can be firm and fearless. In my opinion as many mistakes are made against society by capital as there are by labor. To assume that you are right without a knowledge of the facts and a sympathetic view of your employes' position is a species of bigotry bound to get you into trouble."

Coming from an employer of thousands of men and women, all grades of help, Mr. Dudley's opinion received the most careful consideration. Added to what has been quoted above in closing his address he said: "Remember that in this world there is always someone above you and someone below you, and you should be as kind and helpful to the one below you as you wish the one above you to be to you. The dignity of labor is the sustaining consolation of those who labor, so let us by righteous conduct help solve this yet unsolved problem, which at times threatens the progress of civilization and the peace of the world."

CANADA'S INDEPENDENCE.

It is a pity that the harmony existing between England and her large overseas possessions has not been attained in the relations between England and Ireland. Canada, Australia and South Africa are virtually independent and act in complete harmony with the mother country. Here is Canada, for example, announcing her intention to have her own diplomatic representative at Washington without objection from England. Hitherto our negotiations with Canada have been made through Downing street, London. If hereafter they are to be direct, what will become even of Great Britain's remote oversight of Canadian affairs? It would seem that Great Britain must either hold up a restraining hand or permit Canada to proclaim an independent republic. Yet neither is likely to occur. A workable system will no doubt be evolved, the practical-minded Briton being concerned with results rather than with doctrinaire consistency.

Canada will have her minister at Washington, do business with us more conveniently, and, still be counted among England's great overseas "dominions." Such was the continuing status after Canada insisted on being recognized as an independent member of the League of Nations under the Versailles treaty. The same recognition was demanded and granted in the case of Australia and South Africa, whose relations with the mother country underwent no perceptible change and remained perfectly harmonious. Canada, Australia and South Africa are England's daughters by blood. Ireland is a daughter only through forced adoption centuries ago, to which many of her people were never reconciled. That is the fundamental cause of the regrettable difference in present relations.

1 How are young kangaroos nourished when first placed in the pouch?

The kangaroo, a marsupial or pouched mammal, suckles its young as do other mammals. The tiny new-born creatures are thought to be lifted by the mother's lips into the pouch, where they at once begin to suckle clinging fast almost as though grown to the mother. They are thus fed for about eight months.

2 Can earthworms see?

This depends on what is meant by seeing. The earthworm's life is spent almost entirely underground where it needs of sense of touch more than sight as we understand that function. It has no eye, but does have groups of cells extended over the body and not confined to the head, that are both tactile and to some extent sensitive to light. The worms are supposed to be sensitive to different intensity in light.

3 How far do nightingales travel north?

If you mean in the New World, they do not travel at all being nonexistent here except occasionally in a zoological park, in an aviary. In Europe its northern range on the continent is Copenhagen. It visits certain districts in England and is occasionally seen in Scotland, but not in Ireland.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius.

Very Well.

Ye Ed—The utmost in politeness, we take it, is a Boy Scout saluting a policeman. V. G. B.

Wull, Mebby 'Tis.

"It's paradoxial, is it not,"
Said Uncle Abner Skittle,
"That a woman kin talk such an awful lot
An' say such an awful little?"

Extra Girl—"I wonder why they call Miss Screene a Star?"
Leading Man—"Oh, becausue she is so cold and distant.

If we were running a newspaper we would interview the husbands of the women who sat on the jury and print what they said, but then, we ain't running a newspaper.

A man is known by the company he keeps out of.

"George," she said, "Before I give you a final answer you must tell me something. Do you drink anything?"

A smile of relief lighted his handsome countenance—was that all she wanted to know? Proudly triumphantly he clasped her in his arms and whispered in her shell-like ear:
"Anything."

Latest reports from the laundries indicate that the sport shirt will be unusually popular this summer.

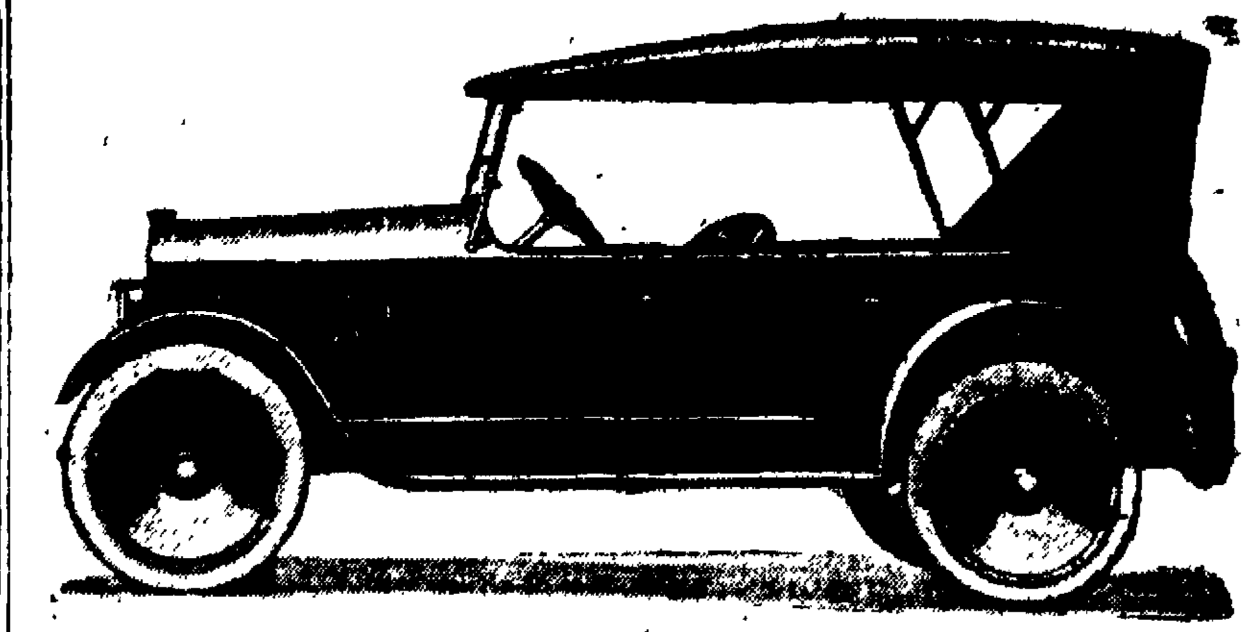

That Massachusetts man who was caught making synthetic nickels probably will be sent to an institution for the criminally insane.

"Code of Hammurabi."

The "Code of Hammurabi," a set of laws made by King Hammurabi of Babylon 1958-1916 B. C., was found in 1901 A. D. in a stone eight feet high. The code contains 280 sections dealing with all sorts of questions. The law of bribery was stated thus. "If a man bear witness in a case for gain or money he shall himself bear the penalty imposed in the case." Breaking into mud brick houses was punishable by death. The old law of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" was enunciated by him long before the same law was stated by the Hebrews in the old Mosaic law.

"Poker" From the Persian.

Poker is known as an American game, but it is undoubtedly an adaptation of the Persian game "as nas." It seems that this game came to the United States by way of New Orleans. It was in some ways similar to a game already in vogue there which was called poque, a variation of an Italian game or its French derivative. Our present word "poker" is a mispronunciation of the French term, dividing it into two syllables, "po que" and adding the "r," which is sounded only in some sections of the country.

Polynesians Not Dying Out.

Contrary to popular belief, the Polynesian people as a race are not dwindling, but are being reinvigorated by the infusion of alien blood. The offspring of the mixed marriages are taking wives from among the full-blooded Hawaiian strain, thus preventing the Hawaiian blood from losing its identity.

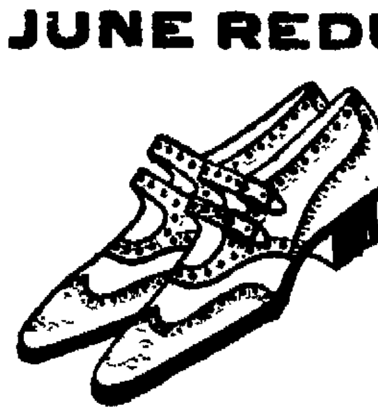

Dream Lore.

For a man to dream of beating some one denotes good fortune: if he is in trade, he will thrive; if he is in love, he will marry the present object of his affection, who will bring him money; if he is a farmer, it denotes good crops and an addition to his farm.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Donovan had guests this week from Poughkeepsie.

Ida McKinley Council, D. of A., of this place, held their regular business meeting Wednesday evening, June 16, with 50 prsent. They initiated two candidates, Mrs. H. Scoolfield of this place and Mrs. H. Riley of Brooklyn. The ritualistic work was good and the drill master, D. Kurtz, and his degree team are to be congratulated. The councilor, Mrs. Kurtz, has initiated quite a number of candidates. Fine refreshments were served at the close of the session and a jolly social time enjoyed. At their next meeting, July 6, their newly elected officers will be installed by Mrs. Mattie A. Tobey, D. S. C. of Kingston. There will be visitors from Sunshine Lodge and Moll Pitcher Lodge of Poughkeepsie, and Vanderlyn of Kingston. All are looking forward to a pleasant evening.

Mrs. Archie Young was in Poughkeepsie Monday on business.

Mrs. B. A. Reynolds of New Paltz was a business visitor in Poughkeepsie Monday and she and Mrs. Reynolds were here for the boat races Wednesday.

Nearly every one here had guests for the boat races and the parties were jolly affairs.

Hattie Dickson has returned from New York where she spent a few days with some friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Osterhoudt and children were in Plutarch and Hawleys Corners last week and attended some church festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown of Vineyard avenue very pleasantly entertained the Choral Union of the Presbyterian Church at their home Saturday evening.

Rebekah Lodge entertained Thursday evening sister lodges from Kingston and Saugerties. It was their fourth anniversary. They gave them a good supper and all had a grand time.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Everett of Washington avenue entertained relatives from Kingston the past week.

The crowds at the boat races Wednesday were something beyond description and the winners and their friends were more than jubilant. All stands for ice cream, drinks and eatable were well patronized. The crowds at the ferry were the heaviest ever known and the streets lined with autos and pedestrians. It was a day long to be remember by every one.

Sunday evening, June 19, the Rev. F. A. Coons, pastor of the M. E. Church extended the courtesies and honor to the Rev. Eli D. Suteliff, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church of this place to deliver the baccalaureate sermon in the M. E. Church which he did. The church was packed with people. He gave a fine discourse. Spendid advice to those who have finished a course in high school. The Syracuse boat crew of 25 sang and they have good voices; also some gave violin selection with Mrs. Kelsey Staples at the organ. The sermon and singing was enjoyed and appreciated by every one.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schoolfield had guests for the boat races from Wappingers Falls.

The Horst and Leo families of New York had guests to see the boat races.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Seaman and daughter, Mary, motored to Athens last Sunday.

The official board of the M. E. Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Constable Monday evening, June 27. Large attendance. Fine social and spendid refreshments.

Wilcox & Schamerhorn families spent nearly all of last week in camp at Watson Hollow.

The people are now busy picking red berries, currants and black caps. The fruit crop will be a very short one.

Kathryn Schantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, who has been in school in Elmira, returned home last week for her vacation.

The Rev. G. H. Schofield spent some time in Long Island recently with some friends.

Class Day at the M. E. Church Monday evening found the large auditorium packed and everything passed off in fine order. Tuesday evening again found a packed church for the graduation exercises. The address to the class by Dr. A. Jones of Poughkeepsie was a grand one. The salutatory and valedictory showed that through perseverance the result had been reached and gratification that by hard work all had reached the close of the high school course and it would be fine for all to take a college course. It is hoped all will take the road leading to success and every one wished for prosperity and happiness for the class of 1921.

The Rev. and Mrs. Foster A. Coons had guests from Pine Bush, Utica and New York for the regatta.

Mrs. A. D. Lent who has been ill for more than a week is improving at present and her friends hope for her speedy recovery.

On Friday, July 1, Mrs. W. E. Wilcox will entertain the Auxiliary at her home at 2:30 o'clock. We were informed this is a very important meeting at election of officers will be held, also members asked to pay their dues. At that time the reporter was not informed who was to act as hostesses in conjunction with Mrs. Wilcox. Do not forget the date and be on hand for business.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jordon who reside in Elmira are the guests for two weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jordon on Milton avenue.

George Kinsley of Jersey City was a guest at Mrs. Lillian Upright's for the boat races.

The name "frost-fish" is applied on the South Island of New Zealand to fish of a deep-sea species (Lepidopus caudatus) often found lying dead on the shore during mid winter cold weather. It is a long ribbon-like fish of delicious flavor and is eagerly sought for food.

RWIN ASPIRES TO GOVERNSHIP

t as Internal Revenue Collector He Announces Candidacy for Supreme Court Judgeship Nomination, and May Head Democratic Ticket Next Year.

Roscoe Iswin, internal revenue collector for the Fourteenth New York district, will be succeeded by Cyrus Durey of Johnstown, as announced in The Freeman, and Wednesday Mr. Irwin announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for supreme court justice from the Third judicial district, comprising Albany, Rensselaer, Columbia, Greene, Schoharie, Sullivan and Ulster counties.

An Albany dispatch states that it is said that if Mr Irwin shows unusual strength in the judicial fight this fall he may be named as the Democratic candidate for governor next year This is his real ambition, politicians declare

The dispatch further states that it appears that Mr Durey will have only about fifty-two appointments to make in the internal revenue bureau. Three of the biggest men in the department under Mr Irwin are protected by civil service and cannot be ousted except on formal charges, it is claimed.

The men are Max Kaplan of this city, cashier and right hand man of Mr Irwin, Frederick J. Lane of this city, deputy collector, who is listed as clerk, and John B Sherman, head of the income tax bureau, the most important branch of the internal revenue department.

Today Mr. Irwin is in New York city attending a meeting of the Democratic state committee. Wednesday he sent congratulations to Mr Durey, and promised every aid to his success He has asked that his resignation become effective as soon as Mr. Durey's appointment is confirmed by the senate.

It isn't every woman who can go out and catch or trap her own costume. Among the costumes worn at San Francisco's "Boosters' Ball" was one especially interesting. It was that worn by Miss Eileen Young, a Mono county Diana. It was made from the skins of wild animals she trapped herself and attracted more attention than the sweetest bud wearing the very latest importation.

Erasing Rubber.

There was a Philadelphia man, Hyman L. Lipman, who noticed that when writing with a lead pencil it was inconvenient to reach for a piece of erasing rubber to rub something out. It is the habit of a piece of erasing rubber to disappear mysteriously; everybody had noticed it. But if the butt end of the pencil contained a small eraser, it cannot get away. This was the idea that struck Mr. Lipman, who patented it. It brought him a fortune.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE EAGLES.

"Dear mate," said Mr. Eagle, "we are very happy because we are free and because we are such good comrades.

"Hang Flags"

"You're such a fine mate and I care so much for you."

"The same way as I feel about you," said Mrs. Eagle. "I am glad you are my mate, and like the Morning Dove, once I have chosen my mate I am perfectly contented and pleased and never want to change.

"I always want to be with you, Mr. Eagle."

"Just the same way as I feel about you," said Mr. Eagle. "I chose you because I thought you were the loveliest big eagle I had ever seen and when you said you would be my mate I knew I would be happy for the rest of my eagle life."

"Just as I knew it too," said Mrs. Eagle

"We have a great deal to be proud of," said Mr Eagle, "and the day which is coming soon is a day upon which we can celebrate."

"What does it mean to celebrate and what day is coming?" asked Mrs. Eagle. "So many days come along and you speak as though you were thinking of just one Do tell me, Mate dear."

"Yes" said Mr. Eagle, "I will answer your questions. In the first place, it it true as you have just said, that so many days come along, but this one day that is coming is of especial importance. It is of great importance.

"But first you asked me what it meant to celebrate and before I tell you about the coming day I will tell you what celebrate means

"When a boy or a girl celebrates a birthday it means that that boy or girl does special things on that day.

"A birthday is usually celebrated with a cake covered by candles which are lighted A birthday is also celebrated by some presents, perhaps a party, and always wishes to the one whose birthday it is of 'Many happy returns of the day.'

"Christmas is celebrated by Santa Claus taking a trip to all the chimneys and city fire escapes and by going into the houses and filling stockings and leaving gifts.

"Valentine's Day is celebrated by sending valentines and love messages.

"Hallowe'en is celebrated by bobbing for apples in a tub of water and by Jack o'Lanterns and such.

"Thanksgiving is celebrated by families getting together and having a banquet and smiling at each other and in thinking of all that they have to be thankful for.

"So celebrating means to do something special for some day or other.

"Now the day that is coming is the Fourth of July and it is a day which is very fine.

"There are fireworks and firecrackers and bands and parades and picnics and flag-waving and all sorts of fine things on that day.

"The people are so glad they belong to a free country and they each wave their beloved flag and shout:

"'O, long may it wave,
O'er the land of the free,
And the home of the brave.'

"Each one has a flag just alike and they hang flags out of their windows and from their office buildings. It is a very great day!

"And we are the bird of this country. Yes, the Eagle family has been chosen as the bird of the country which is so soon to celebrate the Fourth of July.

National Bird.

"We are free as the people are free. The people cannot fly with wings but they are free people just the same.

"And they have chosen us because we are so strong and are free as we fly in the air. They've chosen us as the National Bird.

"Pictures of us are everywhere: And too, dear Mate, we have such good eyesight and they think that is a good point about us for as we can see clearly and truly so can they see clearly and truly.

"Oh, dear Mate, it is a great thing to belong to the Eagle family and to be Bald Eagles who have been so honored."

"It is a great thing," agreed Mrs. Eagle, "a very great thing indeed!"

Undeserved Praise.

A school teacher was telling her class of youngsters the story of the discovery of America. "And," she ended, "all this happened more than 400 years ago."

"Gee whiz," gasped one small boy, "what a memory you've got!"

Right Giving.

He gives not best that gives most; but he gives most who gives best. If then I cannot give bountifully, yet I will give freely; and what I want in my heart, supply by my heart. He gives well that gives willingly.—Adelbert Warwick.

Georges Carpentier and Babe Ruth

Here is a picture of Georges Carpentier, the Manhasset Hermit, and Babe Ruth out for a subpoena gathering whirl in Babe's new boat If Dempsey carries Carp along as fast as he travelled with Ruth the referee will have to use a motorcycle Note the concentrated expression on Babe's pan The boys have been discussing the Einstein theory of relativity and agree that if Carpentier can swing his imported knuckles like Babe can swing fifty cents' worth of lumber Dempsey will be escorted from the ring on an ironing board

HUMBLE MAN'S PROUD SPIRIT

Job of Cleaning Ashes Out of the Cellar Is in the Line of Salutary Discipline.

Cleaning the ashes out of the cellar is one job designed to keep a man humble. The man who can spend half a day in a dust cloud, carrying bushel basket after bushel basket filled with cinders into the alley and still be proud of himself is an egotist beyond hope. He may think he is doing a good job and be proud of his work, but beyond that he cannot go. With all that life has given him of fame and position he nevertheless for the time being has become an ash-carrier.

Nor will all his fame keep the dust out of his ears and hair and the small cinders out of his last summer oxfords which he wears for the job As he staggers down his back yard resting a bushel basket on the place where the evening before he buttoned a white broadcloth vest, he will be forced to realize that the maid next door has discovered the fact that he is just ordinary stuff He will know also that the neighbors are onto him; he takes orders from his wife as does every other man, and in time descends to the common level of common work It is good for a man to carry out his own ashes He will grunt and swear and sweat and blister his hands but he will come out of the ordeal, if he has any sense at all, a little humbler in spirit and with a little kindlier feeling toward the man who does nothing but carry ashes all his life.—Detroit Free Press

DEMAND "STORY" IN POETRY

So-Called "Human Appeal" Necessary to American Readers, Is the Opinion of Amy Lowell.

"I have been noting the course of poetry for many years," writes Amy Lowell in the Literary Review, "and I am convinced that in this country (and more so here than in any other, I believe) even the genuine poetry readers have but a slight love and knowledge of the poetry in a poem; the so-called 'human appeal,' the story element, is the delighting thing. We are not, in America, very luxuriant thinkers, we are considerably afraid of exuberance of imagination; it not only does not attract, it causes a definite movement of recoil. Those poets addicted to richness of coloring and wealth of imagery suffer from the very gloriousness of their imaginations. We can stand a great deal of banality or baldness of poetic feeling if only the subject be firmly enough planted on the ground; but we are thrown into a convulsion of distaste if the poet, seeing a lovely earth and telling us how he sees it, forgets to reduce this seeing to the mere background of a love tale, or a death tale, or something equally familiar and reassuring. All of which is merely to repeat the old truism that the American public is inexperienced.

White Ribbon Band in 1835.

Wets and drys have been at each others' throats in Wisconsin for eighty-six years. And strangely enough, a temperance society antedated the first Milwaukee brewery, while the first brew was not taken by a German, but by a Welshman

When Green Bay was called the metropolis of the territory the other settlements, Prairie du Chien and Milwaukee still were regarded as trading posts; when Capt Winfield Scott commanded at Fort Howard, across from "the Bay," having in his command a company of young soldiers who drilled, chased Indians on the ice, danced at the fort, and perhaps took a glass of Scotch now and then, fifteen women at Green Bay with the assistance of two young men, Thomas and Nelson Olin, formed the first temperance society in Wisconsin territory. That was in June, 1835 The first brewery in the state was established in 1840.—Milwaukee Journal

All Welcome.

Sunday School Teacher—Children, do you know the house that is open to all—to the poor, the rich, the sad, the happy, to man and to woman, to young and to old—do you know the house I mean?" Small Boy—"Yes, miss; the stationhouse."

Prehistoric River.

A French engineer claims to have discovered evidence that a great river once flowed northward across the Sahara desert into the Mediterranean sea and was lined with prosperous communities.

Known to her fellow passengers as the "Woman of Mystery," Miss Z Vafowsky, a pretty Russian woman, arrived in San Francisco from Australia the other day. She formerly lived in Petrograd, she told inquirers, but refused to state the purpose of her visit to this country. She is thought to be a Russian noblewoman incognito.

RAILWAY UNION LEADERS GATHER

Chicago to Plan How They Shall Meet Situation Brought About by Wage Board Decisions—Referendum Necessary Before Strike Can Be Called.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 30.—More than a thousand railway union leaders, representing 1,500,000 railway employes, will convene in Chicago tomorrow in an effort to prevent a tie-up in the nation's transportation situation.

These leaders will decide whether the workers shall abide by the United States Railway Labor Board's order slashing wages 12 per cent, whether there shall be a walkout permitted, or whether further efforts shall be employed in seeking a compromise agreement.

Union leaders declare a walkout could not be declared at the scheduled conferences because such an order would have to be backed up in many instances by a referendum vote of members of many of the unions which as yet have not expressed their sentiments by ballot.

The executive council of the federated shop crafts has called the six presidents of the crafts to hurry to Chicago. The shop craft workers have voted to reject the wage cut.

Other railway unions which have already taken a referendum vote include the metal workers, signal men, stationary engineers and maintenance of way men.

There will be representatives, in addition to the above unions, of engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, switchmen and clerks at the Chicago conclave.

There will be four main meetings in progress simultaneously. The conference of the four railway brotherhood chairmen—by far the largest meeting—will be at Medinah Temple; maintenance of way men will meet at the Masonic Temple; the railway clerks' representatives at the Atlantic Hotel, and the chief executives of the railway workers' organization will assemble at the Great Northern Hotel.

The various organizations were faced today by a further adverse ruling by the railway labor board which will react against them in their controversies with the employing roads. This decision held that no separate agreement as to wages or working conditions, made by any group of railway employes, shall have force against an agreement made with that class of employes as a whole.

Hustle in Scotch City.

Folks who believe hustle and bustle in every-day life is a characteristic confined strictly to the western hemisphere would do well to visit Glasgow, according to a man who has just returned from a tour of investigation of the utilities of Europe. "In all the time I was in the busy Scotch metropolis," he states, "I never saw a street car stop at any but few stipulated stations. At all other places the motorman merely reduces the speed of his vehicle when he is hailed by a prospective fare and the latter makes his ascent to the platform on the fly. Men and women, young and old, have become so used to mounting the cars while they are in movement that the latter seem to be in a state of perpetual motion at all times."

Sun's Rays and Tuberculosis.

Dr. A. Rollier, the great exponent of the sun cure for tuberculosis, explains in the Lancet (London) why sunlight effects a cure, not only in tuberculosis but of suppurating wounds, anaemia, rickets and other affections. It is because the light is highly poisonous to bacteria in general and to those of tuberculosis in particular, while it is not only harmless but actually beneficial to the cells of the higher animals.

Sunlight seems to hurry up the disintegration of cells damaged beyond repair and at the same time to stimulate the activity of undamaged ones. And it is not the ultra-violet rays but the luminous rays that are so beneficial.

WHY—

Work Can Be Made Play, and Play Work

Over and over has it been dinned in our ears that the salvation of the world, the cure for economic ills, is work, work and its side-partner, "increased production." Nothing is said in support of increased production of holidays, and the fact that two years have passed since the armistice was signed without adding to our legalized loaf-list an Armistice day, is evidence, perhaps, that work-propaganda is not utter waste of words. This is not said to belittle the significance of Armistice day. Rather it is to warn against the precedent of seeking in the war opportunities for holiday-making. They are all too numerous for a nation which believes in work at all.

No; at the risk of being considered callous, let us resist this tendency to make holidays, even though the material be promising. Apart from conditions of the moment when much leisure is involuntary and unwelcome, we are already too much animated by the holiday spirit. There has been a steadily growing inclination to make of every day as much of a holiday as practicable. Work at your play and play at your work has been the motto of too many of us for the nation's good. Although deprecating as bad business the doctrine of something for nothing, we have set up a substitute equally vicious in the long run; namely, as little as possible for the most you can get. Not as an opportunity for training, or preparation for advancement through gumption and fitness, not, with an eye focused on his own future, does your average present-day applicant seek his like-work. That work is best which starts latest in the morning and stops earliest in the afternoon. Ask any young holder of a "swell job" by what test he judges it.

A country which encourages too many all-day siestas, some of them legal, others adopted informally "by unanimous consent," will ultimately shut up shop.—Leslie's.

FEW ACCIDENTS TO AVIATORS

Why the Idea That Air Travel Is Particularly Dangerous Will Be Hard to Eradicate.

It does not seem possible at this time to the average citizen that he will ever come to look on flying as anything but a dangerous stunt. If he needs assurance on this point he has but to play for a moment that he has tossed a brick into the air and—still in play—he is now stepping underneath it in its progress to the earth. The very thought of this imaginary brick coming down on his head is enough to make him decline the most urgent invitation to fly. And if he adds to the fact that what goes up must come down, the further knowledge that the higher it goes the harder it falls, he will not even read the aviator's invitation.

And still, so a recent writer on this subject tells us the average man is altogether wrong in his belief that flying is dangerous. Such opinion is founded on reports of accidents during wartime flying; and the list of accidents is greatly augmented by the fact that the average citizen includes in it the accidents which result from stunt flying for exhibition purposes. Aviation designed for passenger and commercial service is not to be compared to the former kind of flying. One could make motoring dangerous by putting obstacles in the path of the motorist, or by shooting at him from the roadside now and then.—Detroit News.

How Papier Mache Is Made.

Papier mache is obtained from old paper made into a pulp and ground with milk or lime or limewater and a little gum dextrin or starch. This pulp then is pressed into form, coated with linseed oil, baked at a high temperature and finally varnished. The pulp sometimes is mixed with clay, (kaolin), chalk, etc., and other kinds are made of a paste of pulp and recently slaked lime. This is used for ornamenting wood, etc. It possesses great strength and lightness. It may be rendered partly waterproof by the addition of sulphate of iron, quicklime and glue, or the white of an egg, to the pulp, and incombustible by the additions of borax and phosphate of soda. The papier mache tea trays, waiters, etc., are prepared by pasting or gluing sheets of paper together and submitting them to powerful pressure, by which the composition acquires the hardness of board when dry. Such articles are japanned and then are waterproof.

Why Swiss Must Electrify.

The coal shortage has given the Swiss no alternative but to electrify the remainder of their roads and the work is being pressed vigorously. In Italy, also, Doctor Parsons found that electrification of railroads is being extended rapidly. The Swiss government a month ago sold $25,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds, the proceeds to be used as part of its program for the electrification of the government railway system.

Waterproofed Silk Ribbon.

The bureau of standards says it is impossible to waterproof silk ribbon and yet have it remain soft and pliable, for the reason that anything that would make it waterproof fills up all the spaces between the fibers of the silk.

DOLLAR IS NOW WORTH 65 CENTS

Living Cost Is 65.7 Per Cent Above What It Was in 1914.

RISE AND FALL OF PRICES

Report of the National Industrial Conference Board Shows That Food Is 52 Per Cent and Clothing 88 Per Cent Above Pre-war Figures—Peak in Cost of Living Seems Definitely to Have Been Reached and Passed—Clothing Took Highest Jump.

The downward movement of the cost of living has now been continuously in progress for sufficient time to establish the conclusion that when prices are again stabilized a definitely lower level will have been attained, according to the indication of figures showing changes in the cost of living issued monthly by the National Industrial Conference board at New York.

"After the signing of the armistice," an official of the conference board said, "the cost of food and clothing dropped, and in the spring of 1919, despite the continued rise of rents and in the prices of fuel, light and sundries, the total cost of living was lower than the preceding November. A new upward movement then occurred. From March, 1919, to July, 1920, there was a continuous increase in the cost of everything making up the cost of living.

"Since the summer of 1920 clothing and food prices have fallen rapidly, and in the autumn this downward movement was followed by a decline in prices of coal and of sundries. Rents, however, continued to rise.

Peak Is Passed.

"Thus is appears that the peak of the rise since 1914 in the cost of living seems definitely to have been reached and passed. Since July, 1920, there has been a marked and fairly constant decline from month to month. From July, 1920, to November, 1920, the decrease was 5.6 per cent; from November to March, it was 12.6 per cent; from March to May it was 1.8 per cent, making a total decrease of 19 per cent between July, 1920, and May, 1921. The decrease was, therefore, sharpest in the four months from November, 1920, to March, 1921. Since March there has been a slowing up in the rate of decline, but the tendency is still downward.

"If we reduce these changes to percentages of increase on the pre-war level, the same movement is shown, but the percentages are larger and the change is rendered more conspicuous. In July, 1920, the average cost of living was 104.5 per cent above the pre-war level; in May, 1921, it was only 65.7 per cent above the pre-war level."

According to the conference board's figures, out of every dollar spent by the average American wage-earner a family, 43.1 cents is spent for food, 17.7 cents for shelter, 13.2 cents for clothing, 5.6 cents for fuel and light, and 20.4 cents for sundries.

"If we consider that a dollar was worth 100 cents in July, 1914, it would be worth, in July, 1920, only 49 cents of the July (1914) dollar, but in May, 1921, the decline in prices would have restored so much of its purchasing power as to make the May (1921) dollar worth 60 cents of the July (1914) dollar. These changes in the purchasing power of the dollar are very interesting, for they form a true index of our real wages.

Food Prices Drop.

"Food—Meats reached their highest cost in the summer of 1920, when 19 cents' worth (prewar value) of sirloin steak cost 19 cents and 10 cents' worth of rib roast cost 18 cents. One dollar's worth of potatoes in 1913 would require $6.06 in June, 1920. Since July, 1920, the average cost of all food combined has decreased 30.6 per cent, but on April 15, 1920, was 52 per cent above the prewar level.

"Clothing—Clothing prices rose higher than any other major item in the family budget, and reached their peak of 177 per cent in March, 1920. From then descent was sharp and rapid, until in the spring of 1921 average clothing prices were only 68 per cent higher than in the summer of 1914.

"Although the advance in the price of shoes has been more annoying and more obvious than that for many other items in the wardrobe, as a matter of fact prices for moderate grades of shoes never went so high relatively as prices of a number of other items in the clothing budget. In March, 1920, women's $3 shoes cost $9.28, an advance of 209 per cent; at the same time, men's $3.50 shoes cost $9.43, an advance of 169 per cent.

MAD IN JUNGLE, MEN END LIVES

Stricken With Fever on Search For Oil in Colombia.

LETTER TELLS OF HARDSHIP

Two American Engineers Shoot Themselves When Unable to Obtain Medical Help—One of Party Was Nearly Killed by Jaguar—Members of Expedition Almost Lost Their Lives in Treacherous Ford of a River—Native Physician Takes Offense.

A tragic story of the suicide of two American youths, crazed by fever, in a remote village of the United States of Colombia is contained in a letter to the New York Times from J. F. Lockard of Bogota, Colombia. Writing under date of May 10, Mr. Lockard said that the victims were two of a party of four Americans prospecting for an oil company. The embalmed body of one of them, S. Davenport Bridge, son of S. D. Bridge of Monterey, Mexico, well known as a mining man and assayer, had arrived at Bogota a few days before the letter was written, in accordance with his dying request that it be shipped to his mother in Texas.

In Quest for Oil.

As related by Mr. Lockard, the four Americans arrived in Bogota several months ago and started an expedition into the interior that was destined to be fraught with almost incredible hardships. The expedition started for the pampas of San Martin on the quest for oil, the plan being to enter by way of Villavicencio and to leave by way of Medina.

The party left Bogota well equipped with tents, many trunks, books, provisions, arms and ammunition and a considerable amount of money in American gold. One of the party was nearly killed by a jaguar and all four nearly lost their lives at the treacherous ford of a river. Here only the surefootedness and ability to swim of the mules they bestrode brought them to safety. The peons who accompanied them several times unsuccessfully urged them to return.

Finally Bridge and another whose name was not learned became ill with fever. These were the two youngest of the party, and their companions with great difficulty brought them into the little village of Gachala, where they obtained accommodations at a small hotel kept by a woman with six children.

Lack of adequate care caused the condition of the two sick men to become worse, as the only remedy they had at hand was quinine and whisky. A telegram was sent to Bogota requesting that a physician and a clergyman be sent to them and, in the meantime, recourse was had to a native physician. The latter's home-made remedies distilled from roots and herbs, did not prove immediately effective, and the native physician took offense at remarks to this effect and refused to give further treatment.

Call for Help.

Other telegrams for help were sent to Bogota, and finally a reply was received that a physician would arrive from that city on a certain day. During the night before this physician was expected to arrive, all in the hotel were awakened by a fusillade of shots, coming from rooms on the second story.

The door of Bridge's room and that of his ill companion were forced by their companions, and it was found that they had killed themselves with revolvers. Similar notes were found, saying that each found it impossible to endure the pain of the fever longer. Bridge, in addition, asked that his body be embalmed and sent to his mother in Texas.

Bridge, who was 27 years old, had $10,000 in gold in a money belt around his body. Claims for part of the money were made at once by some of the villagers. The native physician was said to have collected $350 for services, and the woman proprietor of the hotel $250, while the peons, who took Bridge's body to Sopo, the nearest railroad point, divided $1,000. The body of the other American was buried.

MUST WORK FOR BULGARIA

Men and Women Called Upon to Labor for State Under Unique Law.

All classes of society in Bulgaria have been called upon to fulfill their civic duties under the provisions of the compulsory labor law, adopted a year ago.

The law provides that men who had attained the age of 20 years and girls who were 16 years old were to be called upon for a certain amount of compulsory labor for the state. Men were to work 12 months and women 6 months and none was allowed to emigrate until duties imposed had been performed.

The number of persons coming within the scope of the law was 700,000, of whom 600,000 have been at work, the labor done comprising roadmaking, sanitary service, digging canals, street paving and the building of schools and reading rooms.

Wages of civilian employees of the Navy department, including navy yard workers, will be reduced to conform with wages received in civilian life by boards meeting in every naval district.

Bathroom Distinctly American.

Some day somebody will write a history of the evolution of the bathtub. It is certainly a very ancient institution. In the ruins of the palace at Tiryns (which antedated Troy) has been found a much damaged bathtub of terra-cotta, which had a plug in the bottom, to be removed after use, in order that the water might escape through a hole in the floor. During the Middle ages bathing does not seem to have been fashionable; and in Europe at the present time comparatively few houses, even of the better class, have bathrooms. This is true of London today, where the portable tin tub with a jug of hot water usually serves the purpose of ablution. The modern bathroom, indeed, with its porcelain tub and other luxurious equipments, owes its development to Americans.

The Bible Translation.

Landor said that "to talk well we must drop our Greek and Latin out of sight," and Coleridge thought it "a kind of providence that our Bible was translated about the time of the greatest strength of the language."—A. Bronson Alcott.

It is understood that Mr. Lloyd George will ask the British parliament to authorize the creation of $40,000,000 subsidy to the industry immediately.

SOME COOLING DRINKS

The following are a few chilly drinks that are different:

Cafe Parfait.—Fill tall glasses two-thirds full of shaved ice. Fill to an inch from the top with cold coffee diluted with cream and sweetened. Serve with a spoonful of unsweetened whipped cream. Serve with soda spoons. This is equally good made with cocoa.

Mint Tea.—Pour boiling hot tea over a large bowl of mint leaves. Cool and serve with cracked ice, sugar and lemon.

Tea Cream.—Put two ounces of tea in a cup and pour over it boiling water, cover and let stand five minutes. Stir into one quart of boiling cream or rich milk, cover and let stand another five minutes, strain. Sweeten and chill.

Banana Float.—Mash three bananas with the juice of one lemon and one cupful of sugar. Add gradually two cupfuls of whipped cream. Put a few spoonfuls of this in a glass and fill up with orange juice.

Old-Fashioned Ginger Water.—Mix together one tablespoonful of ginger with two of sugar, stir into a pint of ice water, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and stir well. Serve very cold.

Lemonade all ready for the glass may be prepared by squeezing the juice from half a dozen lemons, add a cupful or two of sugar with one cupful of water and the grated rind of the lemon. Boil until the syrup is thick. Bottle and keep in the ice chest. Use a tablespoonful of the syrup to a glass of cold water.

Bananas en Casserole.—Peel six bananas and cut them in halves lengthwise and the pieces in halves crosswise. Lay these in a casserole. Melt a small glass of jelly in one cupful of boiling water and pour over the bananas. Squeeze over them the juice of half a lemon. Bake in a moderate oven one-half hour, basting the casserole occasionally.

MOVE AGAINST CEMENT COMBINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 30.—Another step in the government's action against "business combinations" was taken today when attorney general Daugherty announced that he has instructed the district attorney in New York to immediately bring suit under the anti-trust statutes against the Cement Manufacturers' Protective Association, its officers and members.

The members of the association produce 30,000,000 barrels of cement a year, constituting about 90 per cent of the total national production.

KINGSTON TRUST CLUB FORMED

On Monday evening the employes of the main bank and branch of the Kingston Trust Company assembled at the Y. M. C. A. to partake of one of the Y. M. C. A.'s famous dinners. After storing the good things away an informal meeting was held at which time it was agreed to form a club known as the Kingston Trust Club, the purpose of which is to meet at least once each month to discuss current bank topics and problems in the banking field which arise each day. The idea of an employes' club was taken primarily from some of the large banking houses in New York city and which have proven to be of beneficial interest to the institutions and those connected with them.

The order of business at each meeting is to be somewhat along these lines: The chairman shall announce at each meeting a topic for discussion at the next meeting which would involve both legalities and technicalities and in addition each member present must submit a question which is doubtful in his or her mind or some puzzling transaction that may have come up since the preceding meeting.

In order to complete the formation of the club it was necessary to elect a chairman and secretary and by the unanimous vote of the members present, G. A. Craig, assistant treasurer of the Kingston Trust Company, was elected chairman and Miss Kathryn Everett, bookkeeper of the Trust Company, secretary.

"Breaking" Mongolian Ponies.

Mongolian ponies roam freely on the plains until wanted. They are captured by means of a long birch pole, not unlike a fishing rod, on which a loop is attached at the end. The rider goes in pursuit of a herd of ponies, cuts off the one he desires and swings the loop over its head. Then a second rider dismounts and grabs the frightened beast's tail. It starts off at a gallop, dragging him on the ground. When it gets exhausted it is easily thrown, and a saddle put on it. It squeals and kicks when first ridden, but is considered "broken."

What He Got.

When Jones' rich grandmother passed away all his poverty-stricken friends rallied about him with words of cheer and comfort; but Jones remained sad and dejected. "She left a last will and testament, I suppose?" murmured Jenkins carelessly. "Oh, yes," said Jones, "she left a will and testament." They hung expectant while sobs choked back his words. "I," he declared at last, "am to have the testament."

BOLT SHOCKS MAN AS IT HITS HOUSE

During the severe electrical storm Wednesday afternoon a bolt of lightning struck the house of Mrs. Ruger at No. 46 Spruce street tearing a jagged hole in the roof. At the time her little girl was in the kitchen and the lightning knocked down the stove pipe covering the child with soot, but aside from fright the girl was uninjured.

Across the street in the house of Albert Raichle was Frank Sheridan a plumber, at work under the sink. As the bolt struck the Ruger house Sheridan was hurled to the floor, but revived shortly, none the worse for his experience. His helper was also slightly shocked by the electricity. When Mr. Sheridan was revived and learned of the bolt striking the Ruger house he, with others, climbed to the roof of the house and spread a canvas over the jagged hole to prevent the heavy rain that was falling damaging the interior of the house.

Washington, June 30.—All fear that rain or bad weather may interfere with the staging of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Jersey City next Saturday was dispelled today when the official forecaster of the United States Weather Bureau announced that "ideal weather" would prevail. "Weather conditions at Jersey City will be practically ideal, so far as we can tell now," said the forecaster.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 30.—Heavy selling of Mexican Petroleum was the feature of the early trading on the stock market this morning. The first sales was at 108 and before the drop was checked it had fallen to 106½. The general tone of the market was irregular. Pan American broke 1½ to 47. Royal Dutch rose ½, to 54¼. Studebaker declined ⅜ to 77½. General Motors moved up ⅛ to 11¾. United States Steel dropped ¼ to 74⅝. Atlantic Gulf fell 1⅛ to 23⅞. Bethlehem Steel "B" declined ⅜ to 47⅝ and Rock Island dropped ⅜ to 30¼.

General Asphalt declined 2¾ to 51⅛, from which it rallied to 52½. Pacific Oil was exceptionally strong moving up to 35¾. Baldwin Locomotive after yielding ⅜ to 70½, moved up to 71⅛ and then reacted to its opening price. Crucible Steel declined ⅛ to 59. Sears Roebuck was again under pressure declining nearly one point to 65½.

Although there was good buying of many of the industrials in the early trading the market could not stand the collapse in values in the oil stocks and after the first few minutes the entire list joined in a downward movement. Mexican Petroleum at the end of the first hour was down to 100 a loss of 12 points and the lowest price touched since 1918. Pan-American Petroleum followed with a drop of 6 points to 42 and Atlantic Gulf yielded 3½ points to 21¼. General Asphalt also fell six points to 47⅝. Baldwin Locomotive after selling at 71⅛ dropped to 68 and United States Steel yielded ¾ to 73¾.

The market closed steady; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Dance At Point Tonight.

TO SAIL GLOBE IN A LIFEBOAT

Three Norwegians Plan Interesting Trip That Will Take About Year and a Half.

ALL ARE TRAINED SEAMEN

Boat Will Have No Covering Except Canvas Awning to Spread Over the Bunks When It Rains—Boat to Be Sloop Rigged.

New York.—Norwegians are no longer the leading sea rovers they once were, but their adventurous spirit is not yet extinguished. There is a round tower at Newport, built of rude stones, a lasting monument to some forgotten visitors to these shores. Who built it no one can tell, but surely not aboriginal Americans for it embodies principles of architecture unknown to them. Anthropologists believe it was built by the Norsemen, who, there is evidence to show, found America long before Columbus, as early as the Tenth century. Indeed there is a Norse tradition to that effect.

Adventurous Norwegians.

These considerations are revived by the fact that three young Norwegians now in this city are planning to cross the Atlantic ocean in an open boat and eventually to circumnavigate the globe. They are Capt. Mimer Tonning and Mates Otthar Petterson and Helge Westerling. Tonning was at work on the Panama canal in 1915, but going home was impressed into the Norwegian navy. Petterson was petty officer on another ship in the same service. Westerling has also seen much sea service. They are practically stranded here now, and are laid up at the club of the Norwegian Master and Mates' association, No. 565 Henry street, Brooklyn, where a reporter was told their plans. Tonning acted as spokesman while the other two listened and gave assent.

Their plans are nearly complete. They have secured a 20-foot lifeboat, built by the Atlantic Life Boat company of South Brooklyn. It is a gift from the company, and while it does not differ from the ordinary lifeboat built for ship use, certain changes have been made to adapt it for the specific purposes for which it will be used.

Will Be Sloop Rigged.

It will be sloop rigged, having a 26-foot mainmast and a 12-foot topmast, three feet of which will be above the hounds, thus affording a 32-foot sail hoist. Two sets of sails will be carried, one of light canvas for light and moderate weather, and one of heavy canvas for stormy weather. However, they hope to escape stormy weather, except an occasional squall, by sailing in summer time. The boat will have no covering except a canvas awning to spread over the bunks when it rains. Cooking will be done on an oil stove. They will start with a stock for 14 weeks' provisions in the hope of being able to cross the Atlantic within that time.

They will leave Sandy Hook in the near future and steer for the Scilly or Azore islands. From Gibraltar they will go to Suez, Sumatra, the Philippines, Hawaii, California, Panama, pass through the canal and come up the Atlantic coast to New York. The entire voyage is expected to take from 16 to 18 months.

ONCE WEALTHY GERMANS HIT

High Cost of Living Coupled With Cheapness of Mark and Low Salaries Causing Hardship.

Berlin.—The high cost of living, coupled with the deterioration of the mark and low salaries, has hit German government employees such a blow that a number of them say frankly the only way in which they can exist is "to go deeper into debt every day."

Some of them have borrowed money on their salaries for months ahead, and must borrow more.

One government official, on a salary of 2,000 marks a month, which before the war was a reasonable wage, said he had been unable to buy any clothes for four years, that his garments now were threadbare, his shoes worn out, and he had contracted debts with his grocer which he could not pay.

"There is nothing to do but keep on going deeper and deeper into debt," he said. "I do not know where it will end, nor what will become of me. I earn 2,000 marks a month; a suit of clothes costs me 3,000, a pair of shoes 500, a good meal nearly 100; cigars, cigarettes, wines, they are out of the question."

It is not uncommon for men who were once wealthy or held high-salaried positions to ask foreign acquaintances to remember them in case they have an old suit or a pair of shoes "to throw away."

Aged Man Likes Swimming.

Cleveland, O.—Thomas H. Farrell is patiently waiting for the lake to warm up to a comfortable swimming temperature. Mr. Farrell says he prefers swimming to eating. He's only eighty years of age. "I still go swimming every chance I get," Mr. Farrell said. "It's the greatest sport in the world and helps to keep one in fine form. I guess I learned to love the water when I was a ship joiner in my youth. I'm fond of boating and all other aquatic sports."

"Cutting Over the Cattle."

Our forefathers had a custom of requiring a guilty person to endure the ordeal of the burning plowshare, or hot embers, and from this is sprung our modern phrase, "to call over the coals," meaning to reprimand severely.

EARTH [illegible] SOLAR [illegible]

300 Quintillion Miles Off the [illegible] Broadway.

Scientist Discovers That the [illegible] Is One Thousand Times Greater Than It Has Been Thought.

Cambridge, Mass.—Dr. Harlow Shapley, the astronomer who recently came to Harvard from Mount Wilson observatory in California, announces that he has made discoveries that reveal the universe to be a thousand times greater than scientists had thought.

By so doing he has relegated the earth to a plane one thousand times less important than it has heretofore occupied. And instead of being in the "center of things," as has been understood heretofore, he estimates it to be something like 300,000,000,000,000,000 miles from the center of the universe.

Doctor Shapley is a comparatively young astronomer, yet he has won an authoritative place in the science. He is a graduate of the Missouri State University and of Princeton. He was identified with the Mount Wilson observatory seven years.

By triangulation, taking the distance between sun and earth as a base for measurements, scientists have recorded vast distances, until such lines have been extended hundreds of light years, even to the border line of measurement, the Pleiades.

The same Pleiades are scarcely in the front yard of Doctor Shapley's galaxy, which he has measured and found to be about 300,000 light years from end to end. It is a super-Milky Way.

A light year, the distance a beam of light will travel in one year, is 6,000,000,000,000 miles. It takes but eight minutes for light to come to the earth from the sun, 93,000,000 miles away.

"BANK CANARY" IS IMPORTANT

Posts Announcement of Discount Rate in Bank of England According to Ancient Custom.

London.—Announcement of a change in the rate of discount of the Bank of England, such as the recent reduction from 7 to 6½ per cent, is an impressive affair.

Not one of the many hundreds of the staff of the Bank of England knows of the change until the actual announcement is posted, except those with the governor inside "the parlor" where the directors of the bank and leading men of the other banks and institutions are gathered to deliberate on the momentous decision which affects all parts of the world.

When these deliberations are concluded a gorgeously attired messenger commonly known in the city as the "bank canary" because of his scarlet coat and yellow waistcoat, stalks out of the parlor with deliberate dignity in accordance with ancient custom, carrying a big sheet of paper in a glass frame on which are the magic words "6½ per cent."

Hundreds of bankers' clerks messengers and newspaper men who have been thronging the passages push forward to read the notice, which the messenger deliberately keeps far away from the crowd until he has affixed it to the wall.

Then there is a scramble for office, telegraph, telephone booths and cable offices, while press agency representatives wigwag the new rate which is immediately flashed throughout the world.

$199 FOR "SCIENTIFIC" KISS

California Girl Says Psychist Told Her It Would Develop Dormant Faculties.

Los Angeles, Cal.—For illustrating what constitutes a scientific kiss, a fair seeker after advice paid $199, according to testimony in the case of James A. Murdock, who advertises as being the "incomparable psychist and clairvoyant."

Mrs. Sarah Blackburn and her daughter, "Ellie," aged seventeen, the latter, to whom, it was testified, had been given the demonstration lesson by Murdock in the science of kissing, appeared against Murdock.

According to Mrs. Blackburn, "Ellie" was taken to the "incomparable one" for a treatment. She said Murdock insisted on her being in a room alone with him.

It was at this juncture, said the witness, that scientific kissing was demonstrated, Murdock prefacing the act by a dissertation on the effect of kissing on the brain in developing dormant faculties.

Mrs. Blackburn said she paid Murdock $199.

Bear and Rattlesnakes Upset Train Schedule

Elmira, N. Y.—New York Central train crews on the line that runs south from Corning into the coal fields of Pennsylvania are having a new experience. Black bears and rattlesnakes are interfering with the train schedules.

A special coal-laden freight train slowed up when a huge black bear posed on the track in bottle formation. It refused to move until the conductor would it more or less gently aside.

There's a Difference.

Anthropologists say that London is becoming a city of the round-headed, but this does not indicate a revival of the ideas entertained by the Roundheads of Oliver Cromwell's day.—Boston Transcript.

HUGHES REJECTS PANAMA'S BRIEF

And as Two Months' Notice is About Up She Will Be Told to Comply Quickly With Terms of White Award.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 30.—Having considered all the arguments offered by Panama against the acceptance of the White boundary award, Secretary of State Hughes has rejected them in their entirety and Panama will be informed that terms of the award must be carried out, it was learned today.

The two months' time limit which was informally set for Panama's compliance with the terms of Secretary Hughes's note of April, is now expiring, andthe state department will insist upon immediate action by Panama to meet the demands made in that note.

Orang Outang.

The huge apes (anthropoid) known as orang outangs are incorrectly named, probably owing to the difficulty du Chaillu, their discoverer, experienced in pronouncing Malay. Orang means a man, and outang a debt, so that orang outang means a man in debt. But the Malay word outan means forest, so that orang outan, means man of the forest, in distinction to orang dusun, man of the village,' civilized man.

MUSICAL TALENT SHOWN.

By Pupils of Miss Ethel Mauterstock, in Recital.

It is interesting to note the specially excellent features shown in the playing of youthful pupils at the various recitals given in our city at recital time. At the recital given by the pupils of Miss Ethel Mauterstock at the chapel of the Trinity M. E. Church it was noteworthy that while the children were for the most part very young indeed, the selections were much longer than their years proportionately, yet their memory work was excellent. While they showed an unusual degree of technical excellency they were perhaps most to be complimented for the expression and shading with which the numbers were played. The program was pleasantly varied by some of the children giving excellent readings.

The Chapel was decorated with large vases and baskets of "Black-eyed Susans," most artistically arranged.

The program opened with a pleasing duet, "Scherzo," by Schubert, played by Edna Goodsell and Miss Mauterstock.

Then tiny Bernice Abrahams played "Ding-Dong Bell," by Spaulding remarkably well.

But the youngest member of the class was Dorothy Kline, seven and a half years old, who played, first "Good Night, Little Girl," by Cramm finely. Then if you please, this little lady prefaced her next number, "The Contented Bird," by Rowe, with an appropriate recitation and piano selection being splendidly given. Later in the program, Dorothy recited very cleverly, "How to Tell the 'Time."

A sweet melodic number was "Morning Prayer," by Streabogg, played by Caroline Port, after which another of the youngest pupils recited admirably, Riley's "Little Orphant Annie." Later on Sophie showed her musical talents by the way in which she played, "A June Morning," varied and quite difficult.

"Butterfly's Lullaby," by Ellis, was very prettily played by Julia McEntee, after which Master Blanford Raichle gave a crisp, cheery rendition of "The Jolly Huntsman," by Markel.

"Frolics," by Haesche, was a bright selection well played by Hilda Longendyke, and was followed by two fascinating readings given by another wee, little girl, Lilian Handler, who gave "Daffy-Down Dilly," by Warner and "The Duel," by Eugene Field.

A more serious but charming number was "Fireside Tale," by Ringuet, well played by Adiska Conro, after which the audience greatly enjoyed a fine, military number, "In Rank and File," by Lange played by Palmer Brodhead.

Still another number remarkably well played was "Dorothy—Old English Dance," by Smith, the musician being George Pratt.

A bright, varied number, very prettily played by Janet Thompson, was "For Your Delight," by Van Gael. This was followed by a selection calling for some particularly good finger work, "Butterflies," by Lege, which was well played by Evelyn Beedle.

Evelyn Way played in a bright and tripping manner, "In the Merry Month of May," by Preston. This was followed by a really serious number, "Consolation," one of Mendelssohn's songs without words, excellently interpreted and played by Richard Hall.

A particularly varied and quite difficult number, "By the Mountain Spring," by Bohm, was splendidly played by May Miller, after which Kathryn Muller played the very musical "Romance," by Zitterbart, with excellent taste and execution.

Every one forgot how warm and close it was as they listened eagerly to Master Joseph Block give the landlord's tale," from Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn." He was enthusiastically encored.

An ambitious number played excellently was "Air de Ballet," by Chaminade, the pleasing performer being Edna Goodsell.

Then every one enjoyed the humorous reading, "Kentucky Philosophy, given by Miriam Cassler.

The program closed with the charming "Scarf Dance," by Chaminade, played exceptionally well by Gladys Raichle.

CHICAGO POLICE DISCARD RIOT RIFLE FOR SHOTGUN

Find New Weapon More Effective in Operation Against Thugs.

Substitution of the shotgun for the rifle is the latest development in man-hunting by the Chicago police. The time-honored rifle-squad has given way to the pump-gun squad.

The reason for the change was thus outlined by Michael Hughes, chief of detectives:

"In close-range fighting the pump-gun is much the more efficient weapon, for within 90 feet of the objective it has a spread of four feet. Each shot carries nine rounds of lead, corresponding in size to that in a .38 revolver bullet.

"In street fighting, also, the chances of hitting the innocent bystander are greatly minimized by the use of the shotgun, because the effective range is so short.

"The other day we discovered a new use for the shotgun. During a race after bandits in an automobile, one of our men emptied his gun through the rear curtain of the speeding machine ahead. The hail of bullets stopped that car as no rifle shot would ever have done.

"The gun we use has the shortest stock. Every one of the detective cars carries these guns as regular equipment."

Another innovation in the detective bureau's equipment is a steel shield, as high as a man's head, from behind which the operatives can direct, in comparative safety, their fire at bandits barricaded in a building. This portable armor is mounted on rollers, and is light enough, so that one man can operate it. Portholes, through which to fire, and a heavy glass peep hole are appurtenances.

Bombing, which is now a recognized part of police tactics in Chicago, can be carried on with great impunity from the shelter of this shield, said Chief Hughes.

MOTHER AND CHILDREN SENT TO JAIL BY MISTAKE

Mrs. Bertha Zelinsky of Reading, Pa., and her little children are free again after spending four days in the Queens county jail in Long Island City, N. Y., because she did not speak English. She was brought to Long Island City, she said, on the pretext that a sister living there was anxious to see her, by Jacob Raisces, who had served as a bondsman a year ago for Mrs. Zelinsky's sister. Raisces, when ordered to produce the girl, went to Reading and, according to the story told by Mrs. Zelinsky, brought her to Long Island City and turned her over to the authorities. Only when her finger-prints were taken was the mistake discovered.

HOME BREW IS POISON

90 Per Cent of Concoctions Not Fit for Human Consumption.

Ninety per cent of the "home brew" made in this country is poisonous, according to a warning issued by the chemical expert of the internal revenue bureau after he had analyzed numerous samples. In almost all cases, says the expert, home-brewed beer is a "green" concoction and is likely to produce gastritis, inflammation of the stomach and other severe disorders.

The chemist stated that the revenue bureau has received many communications from physicians expressing concern at the number of patients they found whose illness directly is traceable to drinking home brew.

Not His Honor.

RAIN STOPPED GAME WEDNESDAY

With but three innings played and the visitors entering upon their fourth stanza the much needed rain put a sudden stop to the game between the Colonial A. C. and the Chatham A. C. at Athletic Field Wednesday afternoon. At the time Kingston was leading by a score of 1 to 0. Eddie Scherer was on the mound for Kingston and was going good at the time the rain fell. Judging from the game put up by the Chatham A. C. the visitors are fast players, and the game had promised to be a good one.

CHANCE TO GET A HOUSE

By Making One Out Of Ice Barge, For Sale Cheap.

The Knickerbocker Ice Company is offering for sale 35 ice barges, the kind so well-known by residents along the Hudson river who have seen them going up and down the river in tows, with wind wheels revolving pumping out the water from the melting ice in the hold and an opportunity is thus offered to get one and convert it into a houseboat. All of the ice barges offered to the public were used in conveying the ice harvested along the Hudson river to New York but are needed no longer because of the growth in the demand for the artificial variety of ice. The average length of the boats is 130 feet and the vessels cost originally from $20,000 to $30,000 each to build. They will in all probability be sold at prices ranging from $1,000 to $3,000, according to the condition and the repairs which may be necessary. At present the vessels are stored at various points on the Hudson river.

"GOAT GETTERS" MAY UPSET FIGHT AT LAST MINUTE, SAYS TAD

Biggest and Best Boxers Liable To Go To Pieces Just Before Battle and Rival Manager Can Help Bring It About By a Trick or Remark.

(By Tad.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 30.—Just before a big battle the bravest, biggest and most talented boxer is liable to have a jam of nerves that will set him down as weak as a cat. It's the few days before the big muss that get the fighter. Not only fighters but actors, orators, lovers or any of us. How many actors do you know who have flopped at the big moment?

The writer was on the stage with George Cohan one night when he was called upon for an encore and he actually forgot the lines of "Give My Regards to Broadway."

Was there ever a bigger collapse that the one pulled by Jim Jeffries at Reno? Poor Jeff's nerves went to pieces the day before that fight. He walked the floor instead of sleeping the night before, wondering if daylight would ever come. Jeff was never accused of cowardice in the ring. In fact he was one of the gamest warriors the glove gentry knew, yet his nerves left him flat.

The night before the big Toledo fuss Jess Willard was awake half the time. Walt Monahan who slept in the same house with Jess heard the big fellow go down stairs at 3 a. m. to turn out a small gas jet that was burning. It seemed to bother Jess. He thought he smelled something burning. Afraid of his life he got up and put it out.

Earlier that evening the big fellow sat in the arena with Tex Rickard talking over future plans. He was just run ragged with nerves.

Jack Dempsey himself is no marble statue for nerves. They get him, too. The night before he boxed Brennan he went into the bath room to wash his hands. He carefully reached up, turned on an extra light, thinking it was the faucet and then proceeded to wash his hands with air. He yelled to Teddy Hayes, telling him the water was turned off. His mind was on Brennan too much.

When Kid McCoy was to fight Sharkey he had a doc call on the tar in his room for a stall. Sharkey, the lion-hearted deck scrubber, had no fears of McCoy at all and the gag didn't work. As goat-getting goes, however, it is as bad as nerves.

Jack Kearns had Billy Miske crazy before the Benton Harbor fight. Miske had his face covered with vaseline while sitting in his corner and Kearns, spotting it, declared it unfair. Jack swore that it was some kind of dope and argued Miske into a fit. When the bell rang Miske was still sore and quite unstrung. John L. Sullivan, you know, usually licked his man with a few glaring looks. All John ever wanted as an edge was a good face-to-face look at a bloke.

The night he met Jim Corbett, however, he was stumped. Corbett, knowing his tricks, hopped into the ring wearing a straw hat. He bowed and yelled to imaginary guys in the audience, paying no more attention to Sullivan than if the latter had been a dummy. This proceeding got Sullivan's nanny.

Sullivan was wild, just what Corbett wanted.

Fred Welsh handed Benny Leonard the best thrill Benny ever got. The last time they fought, the night Benny was crowned champion, the boys met in the center of the ring for instructions and as the referee was about to send them back to their corners after giving them the low down Welsh suddenly piped:

"Oh, referee, after I knock Leonard down each time am I supposed to walk to my corner?"

Leonard says that remark sent chills up and down his spine. The ordinary dime and dozen slugger would have dropped on the spot.

Watch for some goat getters Saturday. They're coming, sure.
